

Multidisciplinary research perspectives - Research at the Institute of Applied Re- search (IAF)

The IAF is the central research institution of CUF and has been coordinating research activities since 1996. The research projects are both basic- and application-oriented and highlight, among other things, gerontological, nursing science, curative education and theological issues on a national and international level.

In this session, the broad variety of multidisciplinary research perspectives at the IAF will be presented on the basis of three research projects.
